Lauren Moore

Vice President,
Global Community Impact

Lauren Moore joined Johnson & Johnson in October 2015 and is the Vice President of Global Community Impact. Lauren is responsible for driving strategy development and implementation of the Company's Social Impact work. With Johnson & Johnson's strong focus on relentlessly driving better health for all, the Global Community Impact team focuses on supporting and championing front-line health care workers. Lauren also oversees the Johnson & Johnson Foundation and the Johnson & Johnson Patient Assistance Foundation.

Lauren comes to Johnson & Johnson with a very strong track record of leading social responsibility strategies that yield positive business, social and community impact. Prior to joining Johnson & Johnson, Lauren led the development and implementation of eBay Inc.'s first Social Innovation strategy and was Director of Giving for Starbucks Coffee Company and Executive Director of Starbucks Foundation before that. Prior to her time at Starbucks, Lauren led several nonprofit organizations.
